In a quiet residential street close to Harrods, a good night's sleep after a full-on rock concert in nearby Hyde Park is guaranteed. Both hotels are equally well-placed for the Royal Albert Hall, home of the BBC Proms - a 15-minute stroll or 5 minutes away by bus or taxi. Cadogan Hall, the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra's London home, is less than 10 minutes' walk. Holland Park and its open-air opera is 20 minutes by taxi. Take a picnic and head north to Hampstead for a lakeside concert at Kenwood House.

British Summer Time Hyde Park has Tom Petty & The Heartbreakers closing the week-long rock-fest on July 9; the BBC Proms run from July 14 to September 9; Holland Park Opera and Kenwood House have concerts up to July 29; Cadogan Hall concerts - a mix of jazz and classical evenings with international guest artistes - run year-round.

As well as their wonderfully convenient location, both hotels offer value for money, comfort and a friendly welcome. Consider a night-cap or book a post-concert light bite in the convivial Capital Bar on return.
